"Growing up in Novato, transit was my ticket to freedom, and it was my dad who showed me the way.

He grew up in San Anselmo, where my grandfather settled roughly 100 years ago. My mom grew up in Tam Valley, and she and my dad met at Tamalpais High School.

Years later, my dad commuted by bus from Novato to San Francisco, and he loved it.

His example taught me early that taking the bus wasn't a limitation — it was a convenient way to get where you wanted to go.

In my 20s, when I lived in Larkspur, transit continued to be my go-to tool for exploring the area.

Today I live in San Francisco, but transit still connects me to Marin. My husband and I recently took Marin Transit's 49 to a big family gathering. On another trip, I caught the 61 up Mount Tam.

Decades later, I still love the freedom of getting there without a car."
